Come walk with me into the forest's blessed abode,
To see the wondrous beauty the Earth has bestowed;
We'll bask in the surreal splendor that surrounds us,
And listen to nature composing the forest's grand opus,
As sounds of whispering trees and burbling streams, Send our minds wandering into a poet's lovely dreams.

We'll walk where sunlight sets the forest's leaves aglow, Weaving open paths to dapple golden light on all below;
Where trees shade us from summer heat and harsh rays,

Freeing our minds so we can see Mother Nature's ways,
Of creating nurturing sanctuaries for life dwelling there,
To shield its tender wards from storms too hard to bear.

Come sit beneath the glowing embers of an autumn tree, Whose rich hues are a natural wonder many come to see,
While colorful leaves glide down in a whirling course,
Like embers breaking loose from their flaming source, Glowing for a moment as if falling to their ending fate, Instead, nourishing Earth for rebirth into a new state.

The wintering forest seems to be a still desolate place, Yet, under the snow and autumn leaves of a tree's base, Beats the promising pulse of new life that patiently waits,
For spring's warmth and rain to open wide nature's gates;
Roam with me under the trees standing strong over it all,
To watch them quietly sleep until nature's beckoning call.

Let us stroll in spring's forest where we will reap,
The joy of Earth awakening its children from sleep,
And hear life's chorus and watch its offspring grow,
As waking trees renew their canopy over all below;
Come share with me the forest's spirit at rebirth,
So we too are reborn within this temple of Earth.

Every now and then let us answer the forest's call,
To come see life's beauty and the miracle of it all;
If we listen with our hearts as we walk among trees,
We may understand the message carried on a breeze,
For us to blend with the forest's spirit so it will beguile, Us into walking under its lovely trees for just a while.

The wind whispers to the waiting trees,
 A special summons to rouse their spirit; Strumming their branches with a breeze, And swirling the leaves to add some merit, As the wind composes a bewitching song, That makes us happy the wind came along.

The wind's breath lifts birds on silent wings,
 High above the treetops and hills with ease,
 And when they hear the song the wind sings,
 They alight to rest among the rustling trees,

Where they must satisfy their longing desire,
 To add their lovely voices to the wind's choir.

The wind coaxes the green grasses to sway, And stirs wild flowers into a rhythmic dance; As if answering the wind's call to come play, They offer soft murmurs that surely enhance,
 The joyful chorus of the wind's beautiful song,
 That grows more enchanting as it goes along.

Over the deep oceans of lore the wind blew, Seeking more sounds from the sweet Earth, So it whipped up the waters of the ocean blue, Creating thunderous crescendos of great worth,
 That perfectly blends into the wind's grand opus,
 Which awakens and inspires a spirit within us.

Over the mountain peaks the cool wind blows, Traversing with forlorn hope over lonely terrain, Through rocky crevices and snowy trees it flows,

be FreE

Creating a haunting and eerie wailing refrain, That adds a bit of sorrow to the wind's song, Touching the hearts of all as it travels along.

Sometimes the wind grows in howling anger, Gathering dark clouds with thundering sounds, Warning all with lightning of growing danger, To all the human edifices and life it surrounds, Compelling us to listen to its meaningful song,
 That humbles and reminds us where we belong.

The wind's song was born when the Earth began, Caressing its many splendors and various terrains, As it played nature's instruments long before man, Creating a continuous song of wondrous refrains, That bewitches and humbles as it journeys along, Until finally the Earth is no more and ends its song.

My silver stag is fallen – on the grass Under the birch-trees he lies, my king of the woods, That I followed on the mountain, over the swift streams, He is gone under the leaves, under the past.

On the horizon of the dawn he stood,
 The target of my eager sight; that shone Oh from the sun, or from my kindled heart Outlined in sky, shaped on the infinite.

nAtUre

What, so desiring, was my will with him, What wished-for union of blood or thought In single passion held us, hunter and victim?
 Already gone, when into the branched woods I pursued him.

Mine he is now, my desired, my awaited, my beloved, Quiet he lies, as I touch the contours of his proud head, Mine, this horror, this carrion of the wood, Already melting underground, into the air, out of the world.

Oh, the stillness, the peace about me
 As the garden lives on, the flowers bloom,
 The fine grass shimmers, the flies burn,
 And the stream, the silver stream, runs by.

Lying for the last time down on the green ground. In farewell gesture of self-love, softly he curved.
 To rest the delicate foot that is in my hand,
 Empty as a moth's discarded chrysalis.

My bright yet blind desire, your end was this Death, and my winged heart murderous Is the world's broken heart, buried in his,
 Between whose antlers starts the crucifix.

To the Sun

newAlba

Sun, great giver of all that is, Once more I return from dream to your times and places. As geese wing over London in this morning's dawn. Before the human city invades your immaculate spaces.
Sun, greatest of givers, your speeding rays Weave again familiar quotidian things, epiphanies. Of trees, leaves, wings, jewelled rain, shining wonders.

Your golden mask covers the unknown Presence of the awakener of all eyes On whose blinding darkness none can gaze.
Clouds and hills and gardens and forests and seas, High-rise buildings, dust and ordure, derelict and broken things.

hAiR

Receive alike from holiest, purest source Meaning and being, messages each morning brings. To this threshold where I am.
Old, I marvel that I have been, have seen Your everything and nothing realm, all-giving sun.

How address you, greatest of givers, God, angel, these words served once, but no longer. Apollo's chariot or Surya's horses imaged in stone. Of Konarak, glorious metaphor of the advancing power. Of the unwearied sun from the eternal East. My time.
Has other symbols, speeding light waves, light-years, rays. Cycling for ever the boundless sphere of space. Vast emptiness of what is or is not, Unsolid matter's equivocal seeming.

Science only another grandiose myth we have dreamed, Ptolemaic or Copernican, or Einstein's paradigm. Less real than those magnificent stone horses. As light triumphs over darkness for yet one more day.

But no myth, as before our eyes you are, or seem! In your numinous glory I have seen you rise From beyond the Farne Isles casting your brilliance. Over cold northern seas, or over the seas of Greece, Have seen your great rim rising from India's ocean. As you circle the earth birds sing your approach each morning.

New flowers open in wilderness, gardens, waste-places, All life your retinue, as before all eyes you summon, Greatest of givers, your heavens outspread. Our earth's vast and minute spaces, to each the whole.

And today I receive yet again from your inexhaustible treasury. Of light, this room, this green garden, my boundless universe.

2020

Have you seen the Sunset and Sunrise
And the Horizon that's a prize
How the colors mix and melt And look as soft as felt How they float away into black But then you see the stars

That are so small they could fit in jars Now there are so many How they shine so bright And don't put up a fight
So you stand watching them twinkle and shine
Then you realize you feel fine

The central time when dusk meets dawn and the time when sun touches the lawn, even in my heart's legacy,
I knew it was sheer ecstasy.
The enchanting time when. Pure dew covers the glen, The snow on the mountains are blooming white, except for a few stains by sun's bright light. I fear it'll never be seen again: so beautiful, the dawn, seemed a poor bargain, the gangly reed to the river say, "Oh, brother, ye make me quiver."
The river gurgled along, wanting to know where it belonged, the soft green grass busy with ants showers down the dew in pails, how I wish this cool and serene mesmerizing dawn will last forever.
'Twas too good to be true as it came out of the blue, the central time when dusk meets dawn and the time when the sun touches the lawn.

When the morning drizzles touch the unfolding buds, When the sunshine turns the dewdrops into diamond, When Spring's first daisies bloom, When the wanderer wind wanders and the palm leaves dance, When the setting sun mixes golden glitters in the river, When breaking the dawn the first ray erases the ebony, My eyes sparkle a li'll brighter, My heart skips a beat inadvertently.
Beauty comes in and griefs fade.
This treasury of endless treasure, Behold it just a moment, The heart'll fill with solace and serenity.
